Runaway Negro.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, early in July, a negro man named GRESHAM.

He is about 36 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches or 6 feet high, of a tawny complexion, has a scar on one of his jaws or side of his face forming a half circle; I think it is on the right, but am not positive. He is a slim made fellow, with a bushy head, and when spoken to has a scary and down look. When he went away he had a green round coat, buff colored breeches, with homespun clothing, and has never been accustomed to any work but in the crop or field. I have understood he has crossed the Potomac about Britain's Bay, over into Maryland. I expect he has procured a pass and will endeavor to appear as a freeman.

All masters of vessels and others are forewarned from harboring or carrying him away under the penalty of the law.

I will give Twenty Dollars reward if taken in Maryland, or Fifteen if taken in the Northern Neck, so that I get him again,

From the American Daily Advertiser.

*Circumstantial account of the MASSACRE in St. Domingo, in May 1806, its causes,

The massacre in the country was not executed as the former had been, by the troops solely. Christophe said that the soldiers had already waded deep enough in blood, and on that account allotted a great part of the labor to the cultivators of the plantations, who on the occasion made use of their big knives, and butchered the men, women and children, in perfect sang froid.

On the afternoon succeeding this affair, a man by the name of Loi, a great artilleryman, and one intended to be preserved, was snatched from the general at the fort. His wife accompanied him, and at a short distance from the town, the soldiers took her aside from the road to kill her—Loi saw it, snatched a sabre from one of the soldiers, and engaged them all. He laid two or three on the spot, but was finally killed, with his wife. Loi was a fine bold military looking man, and was one of the soldiers that crossed the bridge of Lodi with Bonaparte. His house in town being deserted, afforded a favorable opportunity for a pillage, whereupon in the night, it was broken open and completely plundered, even to the very boards. The wine and rum found there (being a store) intoxicated the soldiers for the next day, and the little taste they had of common property, resolved them to lay a plan for a general pillage.—The Americans saw the dangerous situation in which they were placed; for had it not been prevented by the government, they would have been the chief sufferers, and many of them would, no doubt, have perished. But the officers of government having heard of this intention, ordered out the militia of the city, and all the mutinous party of the soldiery were apprehended and put into prison. Had general Christophe been in the city this riot would not have occurred, but from the circumstance of his absence we concluded that it was connived at, particularly as Proix, the adjutant of the place, was present at the pillage of Loi's house. Affairs certainly had a very dangerous complexion, the stores and shops were shut up, and no business was done for several days. Our alarm was very considerable, and no doubt observed by most of the Indigenes, until the 15th, when we were favored with a letter from the general in chief, of which the following is a translation.

M I L O, May 15, 1806.

To the American Merchants in the Cape.

Gentlemen,

"I have just been informed by adjutant general La Motte, that you have evinced fears relative to the late measures pursued by our government. From whence do these fears arise? Hath any one molested you? if so you shall be redressed.

"You are not ignorant, gentlemen that as long as you attend to your commerce and your own affairs only, you will enjoy every consideration of the government, and in future I desire that I may hear no more of these complaints. Dissipate therefore your fears, rest easy, and never again call into question our fidelity.

I have the honor,

To be, &c.

HENRY CHRISTOPHE."

To which the following answer was immediately returned.

"To his excellency Henry Christophe, general in chief of the Armies of Hayti."

CAPE, May 15, 1806.

"We have just had the honor of receiving your excellency's letter from Milo of this date, wherein you state that you have been informed that the Americans have evinced fears relative to the late measures pursued by government. We must beg leave to mention to your excellency that you have been misinformed. We had fears it is true but they did not arise from the measures of government; on the contrary we have always placed the fullest confidence in your promises of protection. They were occasioned by a riotous collection of soldiers, who had threatened a general pillage, who shewed every symptom of carrying their menaces into execution, and who had already committed several acts of rapine.

"As mobs in all countries of the world (and we have more than once witnessed them in our own) are seriously dangerous, and when once fairly risen are difficult to suppress, we thought it but prudent to wait upon the commandant of the place and know from him what was our real situation."

From him and the administration we received every satisfaction, and our alarms were consequently dissipated.

"We are sorry that an affair of so trifling a nature should have thus been represented to your excellency, to our prejudice, and we beg that you will not for a moment suppose, that we ever doubted your fidelity. We again assure your excellency, that we shall ever retain a deep sense of the kindness we have experienced from you, and that our confidence in the protection of the government is unbounded.

We have the honor to be,

Your excellency's

Most obedient servants &c.

H. M.

J. D.

For the American merchants at the Cape.

This correspondence had in some measure a tendency to remove our uneasiness as to our situation, and affairs again resumed the appearance of tranquillity.

As near as I could calculate about 6 or 7 hundred persons were destroyed throughout the island during the massacre, and many (supposed an hundred) are still existing. In the Cape they have left two priests, a physician, printer, engineer, architect, two clerks in public offices, and four blacksmiths, with four or five women.

It is worthy to be recorded, and to his immortal honor be it spoken, that the general of division, Petion, residing at Port au Prince, refused to obey the orders of the emperor, and instead of murdering the whites (of whom there were not more than 20) put them into prison, and Dessalines himself, his fury having abated, a few days afterwards passing through Port au Prince, released them himself, and they are at this instant living.

The object of this publication, which was merely to give an account of the massacre and its concomitant circumstances, being now fulfilled, I beg leave to refer the reader to any of the gentlemen who were in St. Domingo at that period, for a more lively description of distresses & alarms. If the sufferings of the poor distressed whites can excite in his breast a sentiment of sorrow, he may perhaps form some idea of the feelings of those who were present on the spot, and who had a pretty general acquaintance with the victims.

Continuation of Foreign Advice received by late arrivals at New-York.

PARIS, August 27.

The stockjobbing speculations have considerably lowered the public funds at London. But the friends of peace do not the less preserve the hope of shortly seeing it re-established. The negotiations continue, and the night before last another English courier arrived with dispatches. The treaty of peace may be very difficult to conclude, but when the English ministers cast their eyes to the continent, they must certainly see that they have no more diversions to hope for from that quarter, and that consequently the war henceforth offers them no chance of favorable events, whilst it has incalculable dangers for England.

As to ourselves, notwithstanding the fluctuation of the exchange, notwithstanding the reports propagated by those who know no more about the state of the negotiations than we do, we live to believe that peace with England was decided at Austerlitz.

The English courier who arrived in the night between the 25th and 26th, is Mr. Shaw: it is believed that it will not be long before the famous Basilico will be dispatched again to London, and that he will be accompanied by the private secretary of lord Lauderdale. Thus the negotiations continue notwithstanding the reports propagated all over Europe by the spirit of stockjobbing, the effect of which is every where sensibly felt.

August 28.

We have received London papers to the 23d August inclusive. They exhibit the same picture of uncertainty, of abusive reports, of lying rumors and alarming news; and as among a commercial nation the speculations of trade have a great influence upon public opinion, it is at the Royal and Stock Exchanges that an observer should place himself to judge of the alternative of fear and hope which the inhabitants of London have experienced for these eight days past. The 20th and 21st, Omnium fell to 5, and on those days the thermometer seemed to be steadily fixed at War! But as this extraordinary fall was only the result of the news spread in the morning, that lord Lauderdale had received his passport to return to England; it is probable the subsequent days may have been more serene for the city of London, by informing its merchants and stockholders that his lordship had not quitted Paris. The Moniteur of Tuesday last especially, by announcing the news of the return of the grand army to France, shows, that if England be determined to prosecute a war devoid of object, it will henceforward be really a war hand to hand, and without support for her on the part of the confederation.

All the Austrian prisoners who were detained there in consequence of the obstacles which arose in the execution of the treaty of Presburg, have been released, and have now set out on their march home.

All the French troops of the grand army have received their marching orders to return to France.

The corps of marshal Ney will cross the Rhine over the bridge of new Brisack; the corps of marshals Mortier, Bernadotte, and Augereau will cross the Rhine over the bridge of Mentz;

The corps of marshal Soult and the different reserves of cavalry will cross the Rhine over the bridge of Strasburg;

The corps of marshal Davoust will cross the Rhine over the bridge of Spire.

Thus before the end of September the corps of the grand army will have evacuated Germany, and by the end of that month there will not be a single French man remaining in it.

Several camps will be pitched round Paris for the army during the fetes. That of Meudon already contains twelve battalions, who have been encamped there for this week past.

It is asserted that the charge d'affaires of the emperor of Russia at the Diet of Ratisbon is to publish a declaration of his sovereignty, acknowledging the confederation of the Rhine. It is thought that he will be hereafter accredited to the prince Primat at Frankfurt.

Gazette de France.

The Spanish ambassador, in order to celebrate the fete of St. Louis, which is that of the queen, his sovereign, gave on Monday last a grand dinner to all the Spaniards of distinction now in Paris.

August 30.

The negotiations with England are still carrying on with activity. On the 25th instant Mr. Shaw, an English courier, arrived in this city, and it is now asserted that Mr. Basilico is on the eve of his departure for London, as is also lord Lauderdale's private secretary.

BERLIN, August 13.

Military preparations are constantly going on in the Prussian fortresses and provinces: all of the boats between Magdeburg and the frontiers of Saxony have been put in requisition for the service of troops; even the generals Blucher, Hohenlohe, Ruchel and prince Louis Ferdinand are named as intended to command armies. It is the more difficult to conjecture the object of the preparations, as we no longer see any enemies of Prussia, since there is talk of a reconciliation with Sweden.

STUTTGARD, 29th August.

Our court has just published a new statement that at the time of the exchange of the ratification of the treaty of the confederation of the Rhine (which change took place the 27th July and the subsequent days at Munich) Mr. de Cothner, envoy of Wirtemberg to the king of Bavaria, delivered to the ministers of all the contracting parties a formal protestation against the cession of Tuttlingen; the said ministers accepted that protestation, which was delivered to them with the instrument of the ratification exchanged, and which is dated from Stuttgart, of the 24th July, signed by the king, and countersigned by the minister of state. It states in substance: "that the treaty of the 12th July requires of his majesty the cession of the town of Tuttlingen, and of its dependencies, situated on the right bank of the Danube; but that by virtue of the obligations contracted by his Wirtemberg majesty at his accession to the government of his states, he cannot subscribe to the alienation of a part of his ancient domains. His majesty declares in consequence that, in no case, will he consent to this cession. He further declares that he is disposed to indemnify the grand duke of Baden, relative to Tuttlingen and its dependencies, by another district, which shall be agreed upon."

FRANKFORT, 23d August.

Yesterday the governor of our town addressed a proclamation to the inhabitants, in which he informed that Mr. Lamb, French commissary general, had notified to him the order he had received to possession of H. S. H. the elector archbishop. The difference the confederacy made known, federation and states, by pa French courts, and deliver u tions. The different German princes who form the confederation of the Rhine, had already made known their accession to the confederation and the aggrandisement of their states, by patents and proclamations.— French commissioners are now arrived at their courts: charged to take possession and deliver up to them their new acquisitions. The definitive constitution of the confederation will be carried into effect on the 1st September. It is still rumored that at that period his majesty the emperor of the French will be in our town, in order to open, as protector, the first assembly of the confederated princes. This league is already recognized by most of the European powers; and we every instant expect to see it acknowledged in like manner by the emperor of Russia, and to receive the declaration which this potentate is about publishing on this head. This league augments daily. We have positive intelligence that the elector of Wurzburg acceded thereto, about eight days since, and that the emperor of Austria, his brother, gave his formal approbation to the measure. It is not yet known what the elector of Hesse will do; the information which has reached us concerning the intentions of that court being too vague to be relied on.

LONDON, August 23.
The Paris Moniteur of the 14th August contains the following most important and affecting state paper, being the resignation of the high office of Emperor of Germany, by Francis emperor of Austria.

VIENNA, August 7.

"WE FRANCIS II. &c."

"Since the peace of Presburgh all our attention and all our care have been employed to fulfil with scrupulous fidelity, all the engagements contracted by that treaty, to preserve to our subjects the happiness of peace, to consolidate every where the amicable relations happily re-established, waiting to discover whether the changes caused by the peace would permit us to perform our important duties as chief of the Germanic empire, conformably to the capitulation of election.

"The consequence however which ensued from the articles of the treaty of Presburgh, immediately after its publication and which still exist, and those events generally known, which have since taken place in the Germanic empire, have convinced us that it will be impossible, under these circumstances, to continue the obligations contracted by the capitulation of election, and even if, in reflecting on these political relations, it were possible to imagine a change of affairs, the convention of the 12th of July, signed at Paris and ratified by the contracting parties relative to entire separation of several considerable states of the empire, and their peculiar consideration, has entirely destroyed every such hope.

"Being thus convinced of the impossibility of being any longer enabled to fulfil the duties of our Imperial functions, we owe it to our principles and to our duty, to renounce a crown which was only valuable in our eyes, whilst we were able to enjoy the confidence of the electors, princes, and other states of the Germanic empire, and to perform the duties which were imposed upon us. We declare, therefore, by these presents, that we, considering as dissolved the ties which have hitherto so attached us to the states of the Germanic empire; that we, considering as extinguished by the confederation of the states of the Rhine, the charge in chief of the empire; and that we, considering ourselves thus acquitted of all our duties towards the Germanic empire, do resign the Imperial crown, and the Imperial government. We absolve, at the same time, the electors, princes, and states, and all that belong to the empire, particularly the members of the Supreme Tribunal, and other magistrates of the empire, from those duties by which they were united to us as the legal chief of the empire, according to the constitution.

"We also absolve all our German provinces and states of the empire from their reciprocal duties towards the Germanic empire, and we desire in incorporating them with our Austrian states as emperor of Austria, and in preserving them in those amicable relations subsisting with the neighboring powers and states, that they should attain that height of prosperity and happiness which is the end of all our desires and the object of our dearest wishes.

"Done at our residence, under our Imperial seal.

"FRANCIS."

Vienna, the 6th Aug. 1806.

This is followed by the following Address in the subsequent Moniteur:

VIENNA, August 8.

"We, Francis Second, &c."

"In abdicating the imperial government of the empire, We, considering it as the last effort of our care and as an absolute duty, do express thus publicly a desire equally reasonable and just, that the persons who have hitherto been employed in the administration of justice and in diplomatic and other affairs, for the good of the whole empire, and for the service of the chief of the empire, should be suitably provided for.

"The care which all the states of the empire took of those persons who lost their places by the affair of the indemnity in 1803, induces us to hope that the same sentiments of justice will be extended to those individuals who have hitherto been employed in the general service, who have been chosen in all parts of the Germanic empire, and many of whom have quitted other profitable places, looking forward to an honorable subsistence for life, and which should not be wanting to them on account of their fidelity, and the integrity and capacity with which they have executed their functions.

"We have, therefore, taken the resolution of preserving to these of our imperial servants, who have hitherto drawn their salaries from our chamber, the same appointments, reserving to ourselves to place them in employments in the service of our hereditary states, and we hope, with so much the more confidence, that the electors, princes and states will provide for the imperial chamber of justice of the empire, and the chancellerie of the chamber of justice, by charging themselves voluntarily with this expence, as it will be trifling in amount, and will diminish every year.

"As to the chancellerie of the Aulic council of the empire, the funds destined for its support will be employed to provide for the wants of those individuals who have hitherto drawn from thence their salaries, this will serve them until other measures may be taken.

"Done in our capital and residence of Vienna, under our imperial seal, the 6th of August, 1806.

BERLIN, August 4.

The Swedish frigates blockade every Prussian port, and molest without discretion all neutrals who may fall in their way; but upon land they have not committed a single act of hostility, although the two armies are within pistol shot of each other.

They write from Petersburg that all the individuals of both sexes known to have co-operated in the accession of Russia to the last coalition against France have successively quitted the court.

August 13.

Every thing here breathes activity. The king is returned from Charlottenburg; and we observe a great movement in the cabinet and in several of the military offices. Many generals who had been absent are recalled, and estafettes have been forwarded to the several military governments.

August 15.

The negotiations between Sweden and Prussia have taken such a turn as to induce us to believe that peace and good understanding will speedily be re-established.

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17.

In consequence of head winds, the Packet from Baltimore, containing a quantity of paper for us, has not arrived in time for this day's publication. We are therefore under the necessity of presenting our Patrons with the Alexandria Daily Advertiser on a small sheet. We trust they will receive this as a sufficient apology for a first offence.

Yesterday evening was married, by the reverend Mr. Davis, at Bellevue, the residence of William Hodgson, esq. John Hopkins, esq. of Richmond, to Miss Cornelia Lee, daughter of the late William Lee, esq. of Greenspring, in Virginia.

The Paris Argus of the 30th August says—"We do not share the opinion of the Journalists of London, upon the effect which some fresh TRIUMPH of their navy would produce. It is not upon any point of the ocean that the contest subsisting between France and England can be henceforth decided. The question hitherto was, whether Great Britain should preserve the dominion of her influence upon the continent: this first and principal point has been irrevocably determined in the plains of Austerlitz. The second question that remains to be resolved, and which is an inevitable consequence of the former, is, how long the nations of the continent shall remain excluded from the common domain of the sea, and submitted to the yoke which England imposes upon their commerce and their industry. This second conquest is, it is true, not yet performed; but all nations are interested in it as well as the French, and all Europe is ready to undertake it. The negotiations with England are still carrying on with activity. On the 25th inst. Mr. Shaw, an English courier arrived in this city, and it is now asserted that Mr. Basilico is on the eve of his departure for London, as it also Lord Lauder-dale's private secretary." [Publiciste.

The rara avis in terris of HORACE, is at part of that country abounds with black swans, many of which have been lately imported.

A NEW SCOTCH SONG,

TUNE—"Whistle o'er the lave o't."

We should na' weep ourselves to stane, Like Niobe, that's dead and gane, Nor bleer our een out a' our lane, But "whistle o'er the lave o't."

Gie me a man, whase een can blink, Whase heart is free, whase saul can think Whase clishmaclaver care can sink,
And "whistle o'er the lave o't."

Let beauty's smiles illumine the way, The mirky glen through which we stray, Thus may we live our little day,
And "whistle o'er the lave o't."

When fortune shaws a scawling hrow, And lays our fairest prospects low,
As pleasure fades, let reason grow,
And "whistle o'er the lave o't."

But when she glints wi' face serene, And decks the warl' in gayest sheen, We'll ay distrust the fickle Queen,
And "whistle o'er the lave o't."

And when auld Death, wi' ruthless paw, Shall clapperclaw us aye and a', We maun submit to Nature's law,
And "whistle o'er the lave o't."

Twenty Dollars Reward.

LEFT my plantation near four weeks past, NEGRO MOSES—He is about 6 feet 1 or 2 inches high, his complexion between a dark yellow and black, not a very pleasant countenance, has been accustomed to go by water on board small crafts, is a good hand at the whipsaw, and otherwise handy, chews tobacco, and is very fond of ardent spirits—I am told that he has a large scar, or lump, on the back of his neck, occasioned by a wound, is between 35 and 40 years of age. He came, some years past, from Northumberland county, with the family of a Mr. Edwards, to whom he then belonged; hath since belonged to Mr.
Lindsey, near Colchester, and is well known in that neighborhood. I have been informed he has or had a wife at Mr. White's, in Alexandria, and have some information that he will attempt to go to Northumberland, or on board of a vessel. For apprehending and securing him in jail, so that I get him again, the above reward will be paid, and all reasonable charges if brought home. All persons are forewarned harboring or carrying him away, Richard Ratchliffe.

FOR SALE,
Kanhaway Land, of the first quality;
ONE thousand acres, lying on Duck creek, which is a branch of Elk river into which empties, about 40 miles above the confluence of Elk with the great Kanhaway.
It is a parallelogram—finely watered—Duck creek permeating every side.
In a letter from Mr. Triplett, the surveyor, I am told that 700 acres are bottom, as rich as he ever surveyed, and that the high ground is fertile. Mr. B. Reider also informs me that he has seen persons who have been on the land, and who speak of it in the highest terms.
It lies about 25 miles N. E. of Kanhaway court-house; in a healthy country, eligible situation, and proffers to the industrious every comfort that can flow from judicious tillage and extensive grazing.
Five Dollars per acre are expected for this tract—one third in hand, and the remainder in two annual instalments; or property in Alexandria, Fairfax or Loudoun will be received in exchange.
